

Case Study

An Irish Automotive Tools Manufacturer

Service(s) offered: Entity Set-up

Sector/Industry: Auto and Auto Components

Business Establishment an Irish Auto Component Manufacturing Company

Our client is an Irish company that specializes in the designing and manufacturing of tooling, metal stampings, and welded assemblies for the automotive industry. They reached out to Nexdigm to help them incorporate their subsidiary company in India.

Challenge

The client wanted to have the subsidiary in place at the earliest in order to set up their plant and kickstart operations. Their Board members and local staff were looking out for quick assistance in setting up the company and getting operations up and running.

Solution

Nexdigm explained the overall requirements to establish the entity in India to the client. The information and supporting documents for the preparation of drafts were accordingly received from the client.

The instruction sheet that detailed the signing, legalization, notary apostilization, etc. of the documents was also shared with the client.

Case Highlights

- Incorporated the Indian entity successfully within 12 hours from filing the application with the regulatory authority with no queries or resubmission requests from the authority
- The overall process was concluded in approximately 50 days (including notary and apostilization) from the start of the assignment
- Detailed guidance document provided to the client encompassing all action items along with required supporting documentation
- Real-time coordination with the client to ensure the required information and documentation was received on time
- The record turnaround time in the incorporation stage helped the client to expedite some of the matters critical to their business

The final drafts that were sent out were complete in every aspect, resulting in the appropriate execution of documents and a smooth process. This was possible because of the following:

- Comprehensive communication, timely interaction, and query resolution from both sides
- Provided a detailed input sheet which included all information required from the client with precise deliverables and actions to be taken by the client
- Meticulous implementation of instructions as per the Nexdigm input sheet with precise information by the client
- High quality documents with appropriate application of the law by the Nexdigm team

Impact

The client was able to establish their subsidiary in India and start their operations as planned.

There were no last-minute surprises or requirements for the company set up. Clear and precise instructions to execute documents, timely action on data processing, and coordination were extremely impactful for this project.
